Cured by Prayer and Married.

Philadelphia Press.

The wedding of Miss Lillie D. Tyler of Danvers, Wayne County, Pennsylvania, to Mr. John G. Mitchell, of the same town, took place November 28th, precisely one year from the mysterious disappearance of the young lady. Miss Tyler had been an invalid for upward of six years with a peculiar disease, which kept her confined to her room most of the time. She was treated by eminent physicians from New York and Philadelphia, but in vain. In October, 1880, she heard of a family in Connecticut who cured people by prayer, and to this person Miss Taylor wrote, receiving a reply appointing the 26th of November as the day when Lillie should, with her friends, pray for the restoration of her health. The day came, and Miss Taylor was so weak she could scarcely raise her head from the pillow. The company included her family and her pastor, the Reverend Thomas Wescot. At noon they commenced their prayers, and before night the young lady was able to go about the house. As her cure has been entirely effected, she has redeemed the pledge made long ago to Mr. Mitchell, and they were married last Saturday by the same clergyman who prayed so fervently only a year before for her recovery. The case has attracted widespread attention, and the story as told by the bride is true in every particular.

The Savings Banks of Maine.

Lawton Journal.

The report giving the status of the savings banks of Maine reflects the wide-spread business prosperity of the past year in this State. There has been an increase of nearly $2,750,000 in deposits the past year. Of the $8,000 depositors 66,000 are small depositors, and the remainder over $500. The reserved fund is over $250,000 in excess of last year. Over $1,000,000 has been paid in dividends the past year. The total deposits are now about $26,500,000. Over half the increased deposits of last year have been salted down in United States bonds, and nearly $500,000 in bank stock. It is a significant fact that loans on mortgages of real estate have been reduced nearly $250,000. This indicates the lifting of mortgages on the one hand, and on the other that savings banks, contrary to the old idea, rather prefer to salt their money down in forms that will realize more promptly than mortgages. The fact is that everything else has advanced the past two years, save real estate. Real estate is generally the last to feel a boom, and the last to suffer a reaction. The unpopularity of real estate holdings is a sign of the times that should not be overlooked. In this nervous, changeable, moving age people seem to prefer property that they can "go West" with.

The tale of a yellow dog, a dweller upon a sound fishing smack, is thus set forth by the Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin. "He looks upon a porpoise as a thing especially created for him to hunt. When he sights one on a voyage overboard he goes. Hence he has been rescued with difficulty from drowning several times by his owner." But why the owner should wish to save a yellow dog is not told.

MOLINE, Ill., July 14, 1881.

H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N. Y.

GARRETT: Your remedy, the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, has been used with my wife and myself. She used it on general principles, as a system and liver regulator; I took it, also, for a long-standing liver trouble, which has been removed, and which caused inconvenience, and which failed to yield to the doctor's remedy, or any other, until I used your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. We both feel in pronouncing it to be a good medicine, and we are recommending it to others as a safe remedy.

IT WOULD PAY.

We can say to the proprietors of the theater that it would be a good business investment to put more big doors and wide stairways in their building. Enough more people would attend entertainments, to pay big interest on their cost. It would increase the usefulness of the Reform Club to be able to empty their hall quickly. They would get larger audiences and more families, more children and more ladies than now. Reno would not be a poor show town if there was the right inducement and a good, warm, safe place to go to. Outside of these matters is the consideration of humanity, which should certainly have some weight. It must be a distressing thought to a man of any feeling to think that he was inviting a crowd of his fellow citizens, with their wives and children into a place where many of them must perish if there was a fire.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Senator Fair asks, in a resolution introduced by him yesterday, that the Secretary of War report the amount of money expended and assumed by Nevada in repelling invasion, suppressing Indian hostilities, etc. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Indian affairs.

The Journal asks why the President has decided to appoint no more women to postoffices. Politics, my dear. Politics. The ladies have no votes, and cannot run a caucus.

Deacon Parkinson, of the Carson Tribune, would like to see a beer saloon opened in that virtuous' little hamlet, for the accommodation of respectable married people.

Northern Pacific Railroad News.

NEW YORK, December 15.

A Herald Fort Keogh, Montana special says: T. F. Oakes, Vice-President of the Northern Pacific railroad company, accompanied by General Haupt and Oron Mayer Rice, of St. Paul, and a large number of other gentlemen, arrived at Fort Keogh on a special train yesterday. The party is inspecting the work done during the past year. Oakes expresses himself as well satisfied with the progress made.

The gap in the road between Montana and Oregon is now less than seven hundred miles wide, and will be almost closed in '82. The party were received at Fort Keogh by General Whistler and his officers, who escorted their guests to army headquarters, where they were serenaded by the band. The weather is mild, and over five thousand men are at work, laying the track of the Northern Pacific railroad westward.

Capture of the Remnant of Victoria's Band.

CHICAGO, December 15.

A Times' San Antonio, Texas, special says: Near Presidio Del Norte, on the northern Rio Grande, Chief Arragatti and thirty of his tribe, the main remnant of Victoria's desperate band, were captured by Mexican troops, under command of Francisco Gredino. Orders were given and promptly obeyed, to shoot the Chief and several bucks. Three Indians were killed in making the capture. The Mexican troops are after another party of eight bucks and several squaws and papooses.

THE ASSASSIN'S TRIAL.

You are a Miserable Whelp to Come to Here and Make me out a Book Agent.

WASHINGTON, December 15. As soon as the court was called to order Guiteau addressed the Court and said: "I want to make a little speech. It will be a great misfortune if anything should happen to this jury. They are very honest, intelligent men, and I want the best of care taken of them. There are some of them who are not accustomed to good whole-some food, and consequently they are liable to have indigestion. I want the Court to order them out every morning before breakfast for a walk of four or five miles. I have two or three more little speeches to make, but this will do for the present."

Judge Cox.—The Court will attend to all wants of the jury.

Collier recalled.—Witness had never detected any signs of insanity in the prisoner.

Scoville began to cross-examine the witness, when Guiteau in a great rage shouted:

"I never saw this man but once in my life, and that was in 1876. I saw him but five minutes. What does he know about me. This shows just how little sense you have got, Corkhill, to put up this man as an expert."

To Scoville—"And you haven't got common sense to waste time in cross-examining his character. He was only a clerk in a lawyer's office, anyway."

Witness re-examined by Corkhill.—In my opinion at the time I knew him, he was perfectly competent to distinguish right from wrong.

Scoville asked, "What is your opinion of the prisoner's ability to distinguish between right and wrong at the present time?"

This question was ruled out and another exception noted by Scoville.

K. M. Justice, a lawyer of Logansport, Ind., testified that he met the prisoner in 1878. The prisoner was selling a book of the life of Moody.

Guiteau interrupting.—You are mixing me up with some one else, sir.

Witness continued, but was again interrupted by Guiteau, who shouted:

"Stop right here! Can you prove me to be the man?"

Witness—I think I can.

Guiteau—Can you swear to it?

Witness—Yes, I can.

Guiteau—"Well, you are a liar, sir, a miserable liar. That's the best way to dispose of you."

Witness (continuing)—"The prisoner remained in Logansport about three weeks selling the book."

Guiteau continually interrupted with abusive comments, and finally shouted: "You are a miserable whelp to come in here and make me out a book agent. I was preaching the Gospel and I sold my own productions."

In a few minutes he turned to Scoville with intense disgust, and said: "Ob, cut this wool short. He is lying all through. Don't waste time on him."

Scoville asked—What was the appearance of the prisoner when you knew him?

Answer—He looked about the same as now, except about the eyes.

Scoville—What was the difference in the expression of the eyes?

Answer—At that time he had a free expression; now his expression seems suppressed.

Guiteau—I don't think I am much suppressed this morning. It seems to me I'm pretty lively.

Guiteau gradually worked himself into a towering rage and declared against the witness, prosecution and cranks, whom he claimed threatened him with violence, his billingsgate being especially directed against the prosecuting attorney. Referring to Colonel Corkhill, he said, "he is getting too dirty and too stinking to live, and the first thing he knows God Almighty will take him off and send him down below."

Rev. Rush R. Stopper, pastor of All Saints Church at Washington, boarded at the same house and occupied a seat at the same table with the prisoner from April last until the day before the murder, when he (prisoner) disappeared.

Witness had frequently conversed with the prisoner; both had lived in Chicago and that formed the basis of their conversations, which led to quite a familiar acquaintance.

Witness was asked if he considered the prisoner sane and replied, "a perfectly sane man, sir, and he is as bright, quick and intelligent a man as you will probably see in a summer's day. Not the least indication of insanity about him. A little impatient of restraint at times, and a little nervous, as men in his position would naturally be, but perfectly sane."

Mrs. Scoville suddenly rose in her place and said: "Your Honor, I would like to ask a question of the witness." Mrs. Scoville wrote her question, and reached over to hand it to her husband, when Guiteau sharply said to her: "Now you just mind your own business and attend to your own affairs; you are making yourself altogether too officious in this case."

Pending colloquy between Guiteau and his sister the witness was permitted to depart, much to the disappointment, apparently, of Mrs. Scoville.

The El Paso Train Robbery.

NEW YORK, December 15. A New York World's special from Las Vegas, N. M., says that soon after the west-bound passenger train on the Southern Pacific railroad left El Paso last night, a party of desperadoes entered Wells, Fargo's car, by means of a key, and assaulting the messenger by knocking him senseless, and taking the precaution to bind and gag him, and while he lay prostrate they took from the safe $15,000 in cash and securities, and waiting until the train slowed up for the bridge at Roger's Station they jumped off and fled to Old Mexico.

Scoville's Lecture.

WASHINGTON, December 15. A large number of tickets were sold to Scoville's lecture on Guiteau, but the audience was small, though appreciative. He complained of the press and pulpit as prejudicing the case. Not a minister has called, though they all condemn Guiteau as insane. Nineteen-twentieths of his letters were threats. He believes the prisoner will not live until the conclusion of the trial. He predicts that if he is hanged and it is found that his brain is diseased, it would be the last case of capital punishment.
